

ISKUT BAND
CUSTOM ELECTION CODE

FINAL FOR MEMBER APPROVAL

March 29, 2019

Preamble

In Canada, the election of the Chief and Council in First Nation communities can be conducted in one of three ways: 1) under section 74 of the Indian Act and the Indian Band Election Regulations; 2) under the First Nations Election Act; or 3) according to local electoral system based on community values, customs and traditions, often referred to as a “custom code”.

The Iskut Band conducts elections for Chief and Council by way of “custom code”, outside of the Indian Act and the Indian Band Election Regulations and the First Nations Elections Act. The Iskut Band has the ultimate authority over selection method for its leaders, as well as the proper protocol and conduct of its members of Council.

This Iskut Band Custom Election Code builds upon and expands on the previous Iskut Band election rules and regulations in order to provide broader involvement of Iskut Members in the Iskut electoral system and to provide more clarity with respect to the roles, obligations and conduct of Chief and Council.

This code was developed after consideration of the following:

- Discussion with Iskut Band Members;
- Discussion with Iskut Band Staff;
- Discussions with Department of Indigenous Services Canada staff;
- Other First Nation Election Codes;
- The Corbiere Decision; and
- The British Columbia Recall and Initiative Act.
